Part 1 · Affirmations audio script (for Cynthia to record, ≈5 minutes)

Soft instrumental bed optional. Speak slowly. Leave a full breath of silence where marked [...].

Hello. This is Cynthia. Find a comfortable place to sit or lie down, and if it feels right, place one hand flat on your chest. Feel the warmth of your own hand. That warmth is a signal to your nervous system that you are safe, and safety is where change begins.

Take a slow breath in through your nose. [...] And let it go, slowly, through your mouth. [...] One more. In. [...] And out. [...]

I'm going to say some true sentences. Not wishes. True sentences. After each one, repeat it silently or out loud, in your own voice. If a sentence doesn't feel true yet, say it anyway, gently, and notice that "yet" is part of the sentence.

My body is learning. [...] My body is learning. [...]

I am preparing, not waiting. [...] I am preparing, not waiting. [...]

Small steps are enough. [...] Small steps are enough. [...]

I meet my cravings with curiosity, not shame. [...] I meet my cravings with curiosity, not shame. [...]

I speak to myself the way I would speak to my child. [...] I speak to myself the way I would speak to my child. [...]

Every meal, every walk, every early night is a letter to my future family. [...] Every meal, every walk, every early night is a letter to my future family. [...]

I am allowed to rest. [...] I am allowed to rest. [...]

We are on the same team. [...] We are on the same team. [...]

Grace over guilt. Today, and again tomorrow. [...] Grace over guilt. Today, and again tomorrow. [...]

Now take one more slow breath. [...] Notice one thing in your body that feels a little softer than it did five minutes ago. That softening is oxytocin doing its quiet work. Carry it with you.

I'm proud of you for showing up. I'll see you in the next training.

Science behind the practice: reflecting on your values lowers the cortisol response to stress (Creswell et al., Psychological Science); warm, non-threatening touch supports oxytocin release (Uvnäs-Moberg et al., Frontiers in Psychology); self-compassion increases motivation to improve after a setback (Breines & Chen, Personality and Social Psychology Bulletin).

Part 2 · Affirmation cards (cut along the rules; keep one where you'll see it each morning)

My body is learning.

I am preparing, not waiting.

Small steps are enough.

I meet my cravings with curiosity, not shame.

I speak to myself the way I would speak to my child.

Every meal, every walk, every early night is a letter to my future family.

I am allowed to rest.

We are on the same team.

Grace over guilt. Today, and again tomorrow.

Write your own: _____

CYNTHIA'S THREE RULES FOR WRITING YOUR OWN

1. Present tense. "I am preparing," not "someday I'll be ready."
2. Believable. If "I love my body" makes you roll your eyes, try "I am learning to listen to my body." Your nervous system knows when you're lying to it.
3. Process, not outcome. "I take one baby step every day" is provable by lunchtime. Conception dates are not in your hands, and an affirmation you can't keep becomes one more thing to feel guilty about.

Daily practice (30 XP): one card, once each morning, hand on heart, before your phone. Tick the days:

☐ Mon ☐ Tue ☐ Wed ☐ Thu ☐ Fri ☐ Sat ☐ Sun

Part 3 · Vision board guide (40 XP + 20 XP to share)

A vision board is a rehearsal, not a wish list. Mental imagery of yourself performing a behaviour raises the odds you will actually do it (Conroy & Hagger, Health Psychology Review), so most of your board should show daily life, not the finish line.

WHAT TO INCLUDE (AIM FOR 6–9 IMAGES PLUS ONE SENTENCE)

- ☐ The walk: the path, the shoes, the time of day
- ☐ The plate: a meal you would genuinely eat on a Tuesday
- ☐ The water bottle or the mug of tea that replaces the evening snack
- ☐ The bedtime: a lamp, a book, a dark room
- ☐ The two of you (or you and your support person) doing something ordinary and happy
- ☐ A calm place: a chair, a window, somewhere you breathe
- ☐ One image of the family you're growing toward (optional, and only if it feels hopeful rather than heavy)
- ☐ Your affirmation, written in your own handwriting

FORMATS THAT WORK

- Corkboard or poster on the bedroom wall or fridge.
- Phone wallpaper collage (free collage apps; three images and one sentence is plenty).
- Journal page with cut-outs and a sentence underneath.

STEPS

1. Choose your affirmation card first; the board serves the sentence.
2. Collect images for twenty minutes, no longer. Perfection is not the assignment.
3. Arrange them so daily-life images outnumber outcome images at least three to one.
4. Put it where you'll see it in the morning.
5. Photograph it and upload the photo in the course (40 XP). Post it in the group and admire someone else's (20 XP).

IF YOU'RE DOING THIS WITH A PARTNER

Make one board each, then a small shared section (three images) that represents "ours". Notice where your images overlap; that overlap is your joint goal for Training 4.

Educational content only, not medical advice. Always consult your doctor or a qualified health professional before changing supplements, diet, exercise or detox practices, especially while trying to conceive.
