

Habit Log

The loop, three habit recipes, a four-week tracker, accountability, and relapse plans for cravings and bad weeks · Module 7, Training 2

The loop

Cue → craving → response → reward (Duhigg, The Power of Habit; Clear, Atomic Habits). Make the cue obvious, the response easy, the reward immediate, and the habit tiny enough for your worst day (Fogg, Tiny Habits). Median 66 days to automatic; one missed day makes no difference (Lally et al.). Specific when-and-where plans with follow-up dramatically increased exercise (Milne, Orbell & Sheeran, British Journal of Health Psychology).

Three habit recipes (40 XP) — "After I [anchor], I will [tiny habit], then I'll [celebrate]."

#	HABIT (FROM MY 15)	ANCHOR: AFTER I...	TINY VERSION FOR A BAD DAY	CELEBRATION (2 SECONDS)	ENVIRONMENT CHANGE THAT MAKES IT EASY

Stack them where you can: one cue starts the chain.

Accountability

My person (gets a one-word "done" text): ____ · Where I post the log photo on Sundays: ☐ forum ☐ ____ · One app only (records the habit, doesn't replace it): ____ or ☐ paper

Relapse plans (write them calm)

When a craving wins: "When I've eaten the thing, I'll say 'that was a slip, not a fall', drink a glass of water, and do the next scheduled habit as if nothing happened." My version: _____

When a week falls apart: "When I've missed three days, I'll do the tiny version of all three habits, once, today, and text my person the word 'reset'." My version: _____

The story I'll refuse to tell: "I've failed, so I might as well..." (abstinence violation effect, Marlatt; "what-the-hell effect", Polivy & Herman).
